

STEPHEN WEBBER LEGACY SCHOLARSHIP

Attitude • Perseverance • Strength

Steve was raised in Stockport, Iowa and graduated from Van Buren High School in Keosauqua in 1966. He lettered in baseball, basketball and track. He set several Iowa high school records as a pitcher, including one for the most strikeouts (23) in a seven-inning game, a record which still stands today. After graduating high school, Steve attended Muscatine community College and continued his education and baseball playing career at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Illinois, where he pitched for two seasons, including an appearance in 1969 College World Series. Steve received his bachelor's degree from SIU in physical education in 1971 and a master's degree in health education in 1973. In 1971, Steve married the love of his life, Pamela (Mauzy) Webber in Joliet, Illinois. Although drafted by the Baltimore Orioles, he had a passion for coaching and educating. He began his incredibly successful coaching career in 1974 as a pitching coach at Georgia Southern university. In 1976, he was hired as the pitching coach at the University of Florida in Gainesville. In 1980, he was hired as the head coach of the University of Georgia making him the youngest head baseball coach the Southeastern Conference (SEC) at that time. He had the rare distinction of both playing and coaching in a College World Series. Steve was named SEC Coach of the Year in 1987 and National Coach of the Year in 1990. He remains the winningest baseball coach in UGA history. In 1997, Steve began his 21-year professional baseball career with the New York Yankees as a Minor League Pitching Coach and Coordinator of Instruction. He went on to serve as a pitching coach at the Double-A and Triple-A levels for the San Diego Padres and Houston Astros. He retired in 2016 after serving as a pitching consultant and coach for the Atlanta Braves. One of the accolades that meant the most to him was his induction into the Van Buren High School Hall of Fame in 2019. Steve took great pride in being an Iowan and immensely enjoyed his annual visits to see family and friends near his hometown of Stockport. He read the Van Buren County Register weekly to follow VBC Athletes. While Steve's professional accolades were extraordinary, he will be remembered best for his accomplishments off the field. His desire for learning and teaching never stopped. He was incredibly well read and an astute historian of baseball and Iowa history. Steve's greatest legacy was being a life-long teacher and mentor to hundreds of people. He taught each of them how to live a life of integrity, honesty and humility by modeling those character traits, as a leader, friend, brother, husband, father and grandfather.
